

MEET THE ARTIST:

Violet Dunmyre began to learn hand sewing and embroidery from her seam-stress mother, Florence, as a young grade schooler. By the time she was ten she was into quilting. The seeds were sown early.

Throughout her school years and into adulthood, Vie made many of her own clothes and collaborated with her mother in sewing her wedding dress.

It was not until retirement that Vie found the time to really immerse herself in quilting. She joined two quilting groups in which she sharpened her skills and began to satisfy her appetite for mastering new techniques.

Over time she became a “go-to” person sought out by beginners and experienced quilters, alike, to teach them her techniques and help them develop their skills. These days she teaches and offers demonstrations for clubs and shows.

Shaping her work according to her “no rules” philosophy Vie uses hand and machine techniques to create traditional and contemporary patterns as well as radical modifications, free form, and art quilts.

Vie resides in Karnes City, PA with her husband, Dick, and endless yards of fabric.

Woodland Fiber Arts

Fibers come in a wide variety of textures, gauges, and compositions from animal hair and plant seed fibers to grasses and plant stems, including tree bark and sapwood. As the Woodland Center for Arts and Crafts develops and grows, the Woodland Fiber Arts Studio will offer a variety of programs that center around turning fibers into practical and artistic items. Some of our planned offerings are familiar and often locally accessible, some are rare and border on being “lost arts.”

Artist's Statement:

Because I've always loved working with fabric, quilting became a natural way for me to use my sewing skills to create practical and beautiful artwork. I often get inspiration from a piece of fabric that "speaks" to me. Other times I imagine something I want to create and then search for just the right material to make it work. I believe there are no rules or limitations in art quilting. It is satisfying to put together unique color and pattern combinations to create something that is different than what others have made. Because I like to experiment with different techniques, I rarely make anything exactly the same way twice.
